Ninth International Cultural and Ecotourism Edition

The Final Edition of the above issue will be printed in January rather than prior to the symposium as originally planned. This decision was by special request by the ATA executive and the host country's Tourism Minister.

The reason is to include photos, transcripts from personal interviews, post event comments by ATA members plus stories and features from the event. It will also allow additional input from various African countries participating. The new edition will feature an updated, expanded version of the section contained in this file

The Outside and Inside Covers from the Advance Edition are available for download at this time.

To allow faster download, this and other files from that edition are in Screen Resolution, which is suitable for viewing.

Please Note: However many of our members and advertisers may wish to print copies for distribution to their clients and for local events. For that purpose, High Resolution Pages of print quality may be downloaded from our website on the following web page:

<http://www.africa-ata.org/downloads.htm>

Advertisers may update their advertisements prior to the final printing.
